“With the hectic pace of tax season right around the corner, we are offering firms that do not have a practice management solution in place or that have one that does not truly streamline their workflow, an affordable way to implement TaxWorkFlow to ease what can be a very stressful time of the year,” said Jonathan Medows, CPA, co-creator of TaxWorkFlow. “Firms that are already using TaxWorkFlow are looking forward to handling their busiest time of the year efficiently and productively and enhanced by clear internal and client-facing communication. We believe that having true control over the tax preparation process is something that every firm should be able to afford.”
